CENTER STAGE, AT THE MICHIGAN MOUNTAIN BIKING ASSOCIATION'S ANNUAL MEETING...

Meeting? — What Meeting? —

This years annual meeting was a success. There were approximately 200 people in attendance. Everyone there had the pleasure of seeing a fantastic animated display that was put together by Chris Delridge, president of the Southeastern chapter of the MMBA. The display was at least 25 feet long and consisted of examples of work done by each local chapter of the MMBA, as well as the t-shirts of some chapters, brochures and other interesting examples of what the local chapters are up to. Chris designed the display to accommodate a small TV which was playing mountain biking videos. The display was also lighted and awash with color. If you missed it you definitely miss something special this year.

At this year's annual meeting we were also thrilled by Bob Lawson on his Slingshot trials bike as he opened the meeting with a trials' demonstration. His talents were both challenged and highlighted by a maze of man made obstacles. Bob built the stage set-up himself and has performed at many events throughout Michigan using his collection of boxes, ramps, staircases and homemade plywood

DNR Trails Update . . .

BY PHIL WELLS REC. DIVISION DNR

National Recreational Trails Fund

New federal dollars for recreation trails will soon be available to the states. The Surface Transportation Act was recently passed by Congress and signed by the President; it includes the Symms National Recreational Trails Fund Act. The Symms Act authorizes $30 million per year from the federal gas tax for motorized and non-motorized trails; we estimate that Michigan would get $2-3 million. The administration budget includes $15 million for fiscal year 1992-1993, which begins October 1, 1992; Michigan would probably get $1-1.5 million of that.

The program is administered at the federal level by the U.S. Department of Transportation. The Governor must designate the state agency who gets the funds. If the DNR receives this designation, we will develop a process for allocation of the funds.

Thirty percent of the money must be spent for non-motorized trails, 30 percent for motorized, and the remaining 40 percent for multi-use trails. The money can be used for land acquisition for trails, trail development, and trail operation and maintenance. Each state must create an advisory board to advise the state on use of the funds.

If mountain bikers want a piece of this new pie, they will need to work towards that end. Future issues will keep the Bent Rim Bugle readers abreast of how this program develops in Michigan and how you can have input.

THE SUGAR-BUSH TRAIL — NEEDS YOUR SUPPORT —

An abandoned railroad corridor runs from Eaton Rapids through Charlotte, Nashville, Hastings, Middleville, ending in Grand Rapids. This trail is a major link with an East/West trail in Kent County as well as a planned Northern rail trail to Cadillac.

The development of this trail system faces some unique challenges with land owners on the trail's right-of-way who do not understand the benefits of being able to recreate right out your back door. Bob Ingram, Region III Parks
Michigan DNR
Box 30028
Lansing, MI 48909
Hello Bob,

My name is Tom Pilutti and I as well as my family are hikers and bikers on the trails at Pinckney State Recreation Area. Rumor has it that the DNR program in the works to regionalized park management may result in the transfer of Jon La Bossiere. I am aware of the budgetary issues driving this action, and feel that proper implementation of the plan can save funds. The part that concerns me, however, is the thought of Jon being relocated.

Jon has done a tremendous amount to promote multi-use activities in the park so that just about everyone has a reason to want to come to Pinckney. He has adopted a pro-active policy of multi-use that is most refreshing in these days of increasing regulation and budgetary pressures. Jon could very easily sit back and manage with his feet up on a desk and refuse all attempts to see that the park grows with the needs of the people of Michigan. This is where Pinckney Rec. Area really is the exception. Jon has worked with many special interest groups to make multi-use a reality. There are biathlons, mountain bike riding, cross country skiing, Sierra Club hikes and Boy Scout shindigs all coexisting at Pinckney. Unfortunately, I cannot think of any park in Southeast Michigan with more to offer.

All of these are the result of Jon La Bossiere. If Jon leaves, I fear that the person filling his shoes will be more concerned about keeping them polished than keeping them on the path that Jon has blazed. Please keep Jon in our region.

Lansing. Especially if you ride at a state park, recreation area, on a state forest trail or wildlife area. How far reaching the budget cuts will be is anyone's guess. To assume that every land steward will be as supportive, as ambivalent and/or as challenging as the one who is in charge right now is short-sighted.

Taking the time now to express your opinion will make sure that the DNR is aware that someone is watching them and will hold them accountable for the decisions they make.

If you take a moment to write now you may continue to ride in the future. If you choose to let someone else do it, you may end up writing later and not riding at all.

— HERE TODAY...GONE TOMORROW —

By Dwain Abramowski

Over the last several years I've worked with DNR officials of one capacity or another in Michigan as well as around the rest of the country. I've met with these officials in person, talked with them on the phone, written letters and exchanged information with them and even shared a meal with some of them. I've met some very knowledgeable, hard-working and concerned individuals. However, I've worked with some DNR officials here in Michigan who have been just as on top of it all and then some.

The letter above illustrates the positive affect good land managers can have on a park or forest where people recreate and nature abounds. I have also had the pleasure of working with Jon La Bossiere and written a letter to Bob Ingram. I need to write a letter to about a dozen different departments supporting the people in the DNR who support the lands and the people who use the lands.

You too, have a responsibility to respond to the budget cuts that are sweeping through

Southeast Chapter Re-Organization Begins

By Chris Delridge

During the past mountain biking season, the Southeast Chapter of the MMBA experienced inefficacy and apathy, almost to the point of collapse. This rapid decline of a highly successful organization illustrates the difficulties faced by its officers. With many personal and professional demands placed on these individuals, time and energy became rare commodities.

Understandable as this is, the true failure came in the lack of establishing new officers able to better fulfill the responsibilities of these positions. This, however, would not have been an easy task.

The many projects and accomplishments of the past years have been developed, enacted and attended by a small minority of the this chapter's members. An example of this apathy is the fact that despite the absence of chapter newsletters, trail rides or trail maintenance projects, there's been very few complaints or inquiries.

On Sunday, November 17, an emergency Board of Directors meeting was called by chapter V.P. Jeff Fooks. In attendance was Jeff, board members Wes Watt and Karen Miller, former Secretary Chris Delridge and chapter members Don LeHue, Mark Bolish, Sharon Watt, Bob Wedding and Ted Smith. This meeting was the first step in the re-organization of the Southeast Chapter for the '92 season.

The meeting began with a critique of the past two years of the Southeast Chapter. This re-examination emphasized the enthusiastic and exciting goals originally set for the chapter and the need to be more realistic and limited in our efforts.

Of immediate concern was the need to hold elections of officers for the upcoming year. Towards this goal, Chris Delridge, former Secretary was formally reinstated to that position and elections were set for December 12, 1991 at the Royal Oak Activity Center.

Despite poor weather and late notification, 15 dedicated members participated in these important elections. The new officers recognized the sullenness of the proceedings but expressed optimism at their abilities and determination to direct the Southeast Chapter.

Back again as chapter President is Chris Delridge. Chris is a founding member of the MMBA and the Southeast Chapter. Under his leadership, the inaugural year of the Southeast Chapter established it as a recognizable and influential environmental group.

New to the Board of Directors, but not to the Southeast Chapter is newly elected Vice President Don LeHue. Don comes in with a very realistic and straight forward management style. Having participated in many past activities and projects, Don will be mainly responsible for membership. His number one goal is to increase bike shop and other professional memberships.

Also newly elected and equally new to not only the chapter, but to mountain biking in general is Secretary JoAnn Hadley. JoAnn jumps into the sport head first and comes out riding in style. JoAnn's organizational abilities should keep things on track.

Returning again this year is Jeff Fooks, this time as Treasurer. Jeff served in this capacity before and is looking forward to the upcoming season.

Rounding out the Board of Directors positions are Wes Watt, Karen DeCoster-Miller and Bob Wedding.

Wes, Karen, and Bob have been with the Southeast Chapter since its inception, providing enthusiasm and hands on hard work during many of our past events.

With a new Board of Directors, the participation of our members and a realistic but excited view of the upcoming season, expect the Southeast Chapter to once again effectively and successfully represent the mountain bikers of Southeast Michigan.

Work Continues On The North Country Trail (NCT)

By Dwain Abramowski

Dennis Hanson a Mid-Michigan Chapter member of the MMBA has provided many MMBA members the opportunity to join him as he explores the trails of northern Michigan. Perhaps you've seen his articles about these excursions in both the BRB and Michigan Cyclist Magazine and information on the NCT; in a recent issue of NORBA News. I met briefly with Arden Johnson, a member of the board for the North Country trail at our annual meeting. Mr. Johnson expressed interest in working together with mountain bikers on portions of the North Country trail in a multi-user group situation.

Mr. Johnson has meet with members of the MMBA who live near Traverse City and northward and have begun work on projects to develop new portions of the North Country Trail. For those of you who have ridden sections that are open to mountain biking know what a gas it is to ride and well worth the time and effort. One thing is for certain-the more we contribute, the more we have to gain.

Update on Grand Island:

(Excerpt from Full Circle, a publication of the Hiawatha National Forest, Munising Michigan.)

"...After considering your comments and all of the information we've learned about the island, we decided that we did not want to select any of the existing alternatives [covered in earlier issues of Full Circle newsletter]...Some of them [alternatives] had too much development, some had too little, and some were just not quite right. In the end we decided to create a new alternative by using the best of all the existing alternatives.

The preferred alternative would zone the island. Most development (i.e. a Visitor Center, store with non-motorized equipment rentals, snack bar, restaurant, bed and breakfast, and possible lodge) would be located in an area running from Williams Landing up the southwest side of the island.

The Northwest part of the island would be a little quieter. Visitors could ride on public transportation system to overlooks, a primitive cabins, or backcountry campsites. Hiking, bicycling, and snowmobiling would be allowed along the island's edge.

The northeast part of the island would be non-motorized, year-round. There would be primitive cabins and back country campsites, for hikers and bicyclists, on this side of the island, too.

The thumb, i.e. the part of the island east of Trout and Murray Bays, would be the quietest part of the island with only hiking allowed.

Hunting, fishing, and trapping would be allowed. There would be lots of high-quality interpretation of the island's history and ecology. Some vegetation would be managed to help wildlife and threatened, endangered, and sensitive plants.

In a nutshell, that's it. Now comes the hard part. Waiting. This alternative will be analyzed for its environmental, social, and economic effects just like the other seven [other alternatives available from National Forest Service] All of this information will be in the DEIS.

The best way that you can comment on the preferred alternative, and this whole process, is to get hold of the DEIS and/or attend a public meeting on Grand Island. If you want the DEIS, send me a note and I will make sure you get a copy when it is finished this summer. Public meetings will begin just as soon as the DEIS is finished...if you would like for someone from the Forest Service to come and talk with your group about Grand Island, drop us a note..."

DNR CHANGING PARK & REC. AREA STRUCTURE

By DON LEHUE

While changes are taking place in the Southeast Chapter, changes are also taking place in the State Department of Natural Resources. These DNR changes, however, are ominous, and may actually endanger the very trails we've struggled to maintain access to, the water we drink, and the very air that we all breathe.

As many of you may have already read or heard, Governor John Engler has enacted, without public forum, a restructuring of the DNR with the excuse of trying to save money. Two of Governor Engler's main ideas are to make the DNR more accountable to the bureaucracy that the department itself serves, and elimination of a number of water and air pollution control commissions. These sweeping changes only serve to take the public out of the decision making process and open the door to powerful industry lobbies to have their way with our precious natural resources, all under the pretext of saving a buck.

In addition to these changes, the DNR is currently restructuring the management and working staff of the many state park and recreation areas.

Russell Harding, hired as Chief of Parks only a few short months ago, has devised a "Core-Satellite Park Program" in which various parks will be appointed core parks. These core parks will continue to be fully staffed and open all year round. Each core park will have one or more parks in close proximity deemed "satellite" parks, which will be administered by their respective core park manager.

Satellite parks will be closed with no maintenance or supervision between October 31 and April 1. Satellite park managers and employees will be re-assigned or eliminated through attrition and/or lay-offs during these winter months.

...These DNR changes, however, are ominous, and may actually endanger the very trails we've struggled to maintain access to, the water we drink, and the very air that we all breathe.

Because of this, access to the remaining over-burdened park managers will be very difficult if not impossible. Seasonal employees at the satellite parks will be hard pressed to maintain the safety and cleanliness in the parks to which the many users have grown accustomed. How can anyone "close" thousands of acres of state land to those who care nothing about signs or fences?

In fact, Russell Harding's direct orders prevent any park personnel from issuing violations to anyone trespassing on state lands off-season. Vandalism and motorized off-road vehicle damage will cost much more to repair in the spring if a constant presence is not kept on our state lands.

At a meeting of the Friends Of Bald Mountain Recreation Area, October 28th, Mr. Harding stated that public safety, protecting natural resources, well maintained facilities, and visitor services were important requirements of a natural park system. Mr. Harding also expressed that "seasonal" positions would increase while park managers were recently told to expect the same or less money to hire seasonal help this year.

By reducing staffing and funding, he is contradicting the very ideals he holds in esteem for a park system. With less staffing for law enforcement, park maintenance and safety, and the elimination of environmental commissions, the public will soon be in danger. What if someone is injured, poisoned, or worse, because the DNR had removed or changed the policies that protected the park users?

These dangers may be costly, indeed, for the price of litigating a lawsuit against the state may be more than the DNR is trying to save. Is the state more concerned about the welfare of those who live here, work here, and enjoy our beautiful park system, or is Mr. Harding only worried about the fastest way to balance a ledger sheet?

Many of our parks bring in a significant portion of its revenues from winter time users. Should these parks be abandoned and these earnings lost for five months out of every year? Such actions may certainly only make some parks less efficient than they truly are.

According to a high level park employee who wishes to remain anonymous, this may simply be a plan to over-burden park management to the extent that making the parks private becomes inevitable. Already, our local Rochester-Utica Recreation Area has been sectioned and now falls under the jurisdiction of the City of Rochester (for the Bloomer Unit), and Shelby Township (the remaining Macomb County property).

From all accounts, Mr. Harding's idea of a State Park is surely different from most of us. Mr. Mike LaGerould, Chairman of the Friends of Bald Mountain Committee, said that during a tour of the park, Mr. Harding commented that he would like to see activities such as water-slides, arcades and miniature golf. Mr. Harding also commented that the only people who use state parks and recreation areas are those that live nearby. This observation is totally unfounded, shown by our own chapters and the number of members who travel across southeast Michigan to enjoy the various trails.

Supporters of Governor Engler's reorganization of the DNR feel that it has been a long time coming. Many believe that the DNR has become a bureaucratic nightmare with no regard for public opinion. For that matter, the current system of administration fails to even seek input from the park managers themselves.

Presently, park managers, who should be the best judges of what their parks need and what the public demands, have absolutely no input into the budget making process. On top of this disregard for the experience and knowledge of some of the most qualified DNR employees, these managers don't receive their operating budgets until as late as half way into the fiscal year.

Many a company has pulled itself from bankruptcy by shifting managerial responsibilities to middle or lower level management. This may work equally well with the DNR.

As for what this means to mountain bikers, plenty. With the increased work load that is being placed on the current park managers and the various transfers, it will become increasingly more difficult to meet and discuss trail issues.

Staff cuts and the abandoning of large recreation areas will result in poorer trail conditions and even fewer riding areas.

What can we do?

Begin by writing letters to the DNR and your local state representative. Let them know you're concerned and that you want public hearings on any and all changes within the DNR.

With these changes, much more voluntary trail maintenance and clean-ups will be needed. We need to stay organized and ready to assist the parks staff in order to keep these trails open for riding. By "coming to the rescue" we will show that we are serious about the conditions of the parks and trails of Michigan.

You can also help by keeping your MMBA membership current and encouraging others to join. The MMBA is in constant contact with the DNR and is consistently working to keep the trails open and to open more.

As these changes in the DNR show, trail access is not a mute subject but a serious concern, not only mountain bikers, but to skiers, hikers, and equestrians as well.

CHAPTER CHATTER...

On Display:

As was mentioned elsewhere in the BRB, the display that Chris Delridge made help the MMBA and its chapters showcase everything that is special about us. You can contribute to making this display even that much better, by sharing pictures, posters, and other memorabilia that celebrates your chapter or the MMBA.

Arrangements can also be made in some cases to use the display at special events and activities. Contact Chris and see if you can work something out. It's elaborate mind you, and it's not something you can just whip together, on the other hand it is worth the time and effort if you and your chapter is serious about having everyone learn more about the MMBA and it's local chapters. Contact Chris Delridge for more information at (313) 3721382.

The West Michigan Chapter

By Dave Klein

The West Michigan Chapter has been busy at work organizing and planning upcoming events. We'll be planning a weekend trip of fun and riding on the Jordan River Trail near Charlevoix. We're also going to start weekly rides in April if trail conditions are favorable.

The participation within this chapter has been outstanding with regard to publication of the newsletter and the overwhelming response to the adopt-a-road program. Twenty-one members volunteered to clean the roadside four times a year.

The Western Michigan Chapter of the MMBA had a trash out/maintenance/ Trail building day April 4, at Deep Lake Campground in Yankee Springs Recreation Area. On April 11, they will be doing a road side clean up on a road that leads to one of the few mountain biking areas near Grand Rapids, on Cannonsburg road. Call Dave at (616) 361-8779 for more info.

We're planning to head north to assist in maintaining of the North Country trail near Traverse City. More details to follow in the near future about this project.

Ed. Note: "...most of Michigan's citizens see Michigan's public wild-lands as a natural resource and a recreational treasure, but there is a minority who see wild-lands as a dumping ground for their trash...the successful Adopt-A-Highway program has eliminated the litter that once blighted our roadsides. The problem is now off the beaten track.

The MUCC estimates that three million acres of public land in Northern Michigan [alone] are spoiled by an estimated 200,000 cubic yard of illegally dumped trash.

Placed end to end, that means three miles of rusting car bodies, 167 miles of dirty discarded sofas, mattresses and once-upholstered chairs, 66 miles of worn out stoves, refrigerators and washing machines, 29 miles of blown-out tires and mountains of shingles, demolition material and yard waste..." ....there are two ways that the community can become aware of cyclists. One is through educational programs and helpful publicity. A second way non-cyclists and/or members of the community at large can become acquainted with the sport is through unpleasant...encounters with thoughtless and inconsiderate cyclists....

Bicycle USA Mid-Michigan Notes:

Karen Harkness, Park Liaison for Grand River Park, reported that Grand River will NOT be open until May. Please do not ride your mountain bike there until the park officially opens, it could jeopardize our relationship with park officials.

It was mentioned at the club meeting that Grand River Park is considering the purchase of a number of mountain bikes for rental purposes. The Park Service has requested bids from area bike shops.

Meetings:

Thirteen people, including one non-member, attended the monthly club meeting on March 4, 1992.

Bob Wilson reported T-shirt sales have done very well. You may still order shirts by calling Bob at (517) 482-5875, or by picking one up at Velocipede Peddler, Denny's Schwinn Stores and Central Park Bicycles.

Pat Dueweke, our chapter president, reported the Bake Sale at the state meeting took in about $70.00.

Members of our chapter board are completing an application to the DALMAC fund for a grant to help defray the cost of printing and mailing our newsletter. The application must be completed by the first of April.

A VIEW FROM

THE WEST COAST

BY JEFF TURCK

Editor's Note: I was cleaning my office and look what I found: a letter from Jeff Turck, Member of the year in 1990. Jeff is now living in California and keeping us abreast of what is happening out there so we can get a jump on it here. Jeff attended IMBA Fest last summer, and though I should be impeached for losing his report for us (Please! I feel this is definitely grounds for me to lose my job as president...) I think the information is interesting as well as fun to read. It gives us an opportunity to see how those guys on the other side of the country work and Jeff's story helps us gain a perspective of this year's IMBA Fest. Sorry Jeff. But hey, send me another one and I'll try and do better...lose it for a whole year!

IMBA Fest

The sixteen hour drive from San Jose to Seattle along I-5 really started to become interesting as we were about an hour south of Redding. From here you can see the tip of Mt. Shasta as it reaches up to the clouds. Every mile brings you closer to it's magnificence. Another hour beyond Redding puts you at the base of Mt. Shasta and it takes 45 minutes to go around it. It's truly amazing since the area surrounding Mt. Shasta is flat, while this 14000' snow capped beauty is out in the middle of nowhere.

The drive through Oregon rolls north along mountain passes providing views of beautiful valleys. It seemed all of Oregon is forested mountains.

The occasional clear-cuts remind us of the necessity for environmental preservation.

Shortly after crossing the border into Washington (having downed gallons of cola and high calorie junk food to get there on time) it began to rain. Ah yes, welcome to Washington!

I arrived at the park where the Klein sponsored IMBA Fest was held, at 8:30 A.M. The seminars began at 9:00. Seminars on trail construction, public advocacy, and mountain bike basics were offered [ed. Perhaps we should have info like this at next year's annual meeting? Let me know.] I attended the trail construction seminar naturally, as it was most pertinent to the needs of the MMBA. [Way to go Jeff!]

Another hour beyond Redding puts you at the base of Mt. Shasta and it takes 45 minutes to go around it. It's truly amazing since the area surrounding Mt. Shasta is flat, while this 14,000' snow capped beauty is out in the middle of nowhere.

Mike Dolfey from the U.S.F.S. gave a remarkably detailed presentation of the "Trail Hardening Test" [MMBA now has this document if you need it] done in the state of Washington. We learned about 4 types of trail construction, how to do them, the fiscal details, and which were most effective. The 4 types discussed were grass-grid blocks, geo-web, eco 50, and soil cement. All four methods are labor intensive and cost $9.09, $6.03, $7.75 and $6.67 per foot respectively.

Next, Berry Wibour from N.W. Trails Inc. presented his view of trail construction from a private contractor's perspective. He stressed that professional trail construction teams do the job better, quicker and for less money. (What would we expect him to say?) The heavy equipment they use are Morrison Trail Blazers and Bobcats.

The last speaker was Bern Smith from the "Trail Center" which is a volunteer group in San Jose. Bern Stressed the importance of properly training their volunteers and crew leaders. Financial support for the Trail Center comes from two interesting sources. The Packard Foundation, and R.E.I., which provides grants of $10,000 annually. Bern then stood on a soapbox and spoke on saving the earth and joining environmental activist groups which prompted me to head for the table of jelly rolls and donuts. I guess I wasn't expecting to be preached to, but it was Sunday, so all in all it didn't cause me to much indigestion...

The trail seminars concluded and gave way to single track riding in the Olympic National Forest. Any chance to ride in Washington, take it. It's like prehistoric times. Huge trees form a canopy overhead while the forest floor is covered with ferns. It's so lush, it seems like a baby dinosaurs, is waiting for you around the corner.

Mistake...Mistake

In the last issue of the BRB we (meaning me, as in I) said that the Douglas Fir was the largest tree, wrong. According to an observant reader of the BRB, the the giant Sequoias of California are the biggest trees. However, most trees a few feet around feel about the same when you hit them at warp speed on a down hill. But don't quote me on that...

Mountain Biking and Sex: Mountain Biking and Sex: Mountain Biking and Sex:

A Fantastic Combination, But Do You Have the Guts To Make A Real and Lasting Commitment?

- By Dwain Abramowski

First, the Mountain Biking. I know, I know, I should have saved the best for last. I'm a maniac. I just can't help myself.

Mountain biking is a recreation that is limited only by one's commitment to it. Everyone is into it for their own special reasons. No one does it because they hate it. It's the combinations of the woodlands, weather, exercise, freedom of mobility, the focusing of the senses, the list goes on and on. Mountain biking allows many reasons for getting involved - not just the sex.

Mountain bike racing is another high that is limited only by the individual's commitment to the activity. Many of the general feelings of mountain biking flow over into racing and vice-versa. It's the combination that makes it so great and when you add the other activity as well,...but, we'll get to that in a moment.

There is one more connection that must be made in order to make this "fantastic" combination really work. The combination is between racing and the recreation of mountain biking.

When you go to a race and fork over your hard-earned buck-o-la's, you don't turn around and head home. Your commitment to mountain bike racing is not over when you part with the green and sign the race waver. Quite the opposite. You started weeks (well at least days) ago when you began your training schedule. In other words, it's just beginning. Now that you're registered for the race, you have to warm up, take a few practice laps, get your starting information and then race. Put in the laps. Pump harder and longer and faster than you ever believed possible if you are going to make this mountain biking-sex thing work. Most people never believe that mountain bike racing could be so intense and hard, but it's also more fun than they could ever imagined, and the rewards that follow finishing a race regardless of their place is a feeling that is hard to match. It's right up there with the sex, but as I said we'll get to that in a moment.

Mountain bike racing means you pay your money, then you pay the piper, so to speak and end up with one of the best experiences in your life.

How does this "racing commitment" translate to recreational mountain biking? The commitment must be exactly the same if you expect to enjoy mountain biking for what it really is, just plain fun in the woods. As a recreational rider or a racer you must have the same commitment when you dish out your $20.00 for your MMBA membership. To think that just because you paid $20.00 and joined the MMBA your work is done, is like going to a race laying out your cash and going home thinking you'll place first with out putting in any effort to make it happen. And the sex - forget it!

The same is true for the land access concerns that face each and every one of us as mountain bikers. If you do not put in the effort after you drop your $20.00 bucks, and volunteer to help your chapter leaders, pitch in and mitigate trail impact, do trash outs, attend and contribute at meetings, help with letter writing, and in general, put out a little effort with those twenty Washington's, you have no more right to think that all the trails in your area will remain open and free for you to ride on at your leisure than to think that you'll beat the "Tomes" just by paying your race entry fee.

As for the sex, well let me tell you...in a moment...

So, the dollars you spend racing mean one thing, you've got your work cut out for you. It's a long, hard, intense, fun, rewarding and sometimes seemingly endless commitment you have challenged yourself to, the same goes with joining the MMBA. You have to commit yourself to contribute, or wind up with a DNF stamped on your local trails. Then what do you have? Sex without mountain biking...I can't even think about it.

Now, when you make your

The purpose of National Trails Day is to give millions of participants a positive trail experience, educating users and the public at large about trails at the same time. The goal is to give Americans answers to these questions:

A) What is a trail?

Trails are urban greenways, rail-trail corridors, and wilderness back-packing trails - paths for recreation and travel.

B) What can you do on trails?

You can walk for exercise or (in some areas) to get from your home to a shopping district, you can run or ride your bike, you can bird watch, backpack, and even ride a horse.

C) Why are trails important?

Trails promote fitness, they provide access to nature, and they enhance the beauty and livability of communities.

D) Why are trails an environmental issues?

In well planned communities, trails are the backbone of greenways and linear nature corridors which can preserve wetlands and other ecosystems, and provide habitat for plants and animals. Trails also promote access to remote wilderness areas. Access leads to appreciation, which leads to concern and protection.

E) How can individuals get involved?

The most successful trails are supported by an active network of volunteers who build and maintain trails, improve them, contribute money to local grass-roots organizations, and help by working with elected officials to make trails a priority.

One goal of National Trails Day is to make Americans aware of the potential for developing an interconnected, nationwide system of trails. Interconnected trail systems are already being developed across the country. Most likely there is a connection developing right in your backyard in the form of the extension of the North County Trail, Rail-Trail, and the maintenance and development of existing, and new state forest and state park trails. #### MDNR Reorganization Update:

Judge Peter D. Houk (30th Circuit Court) ruled that Governor Jon Engler's executive orders to reorganize the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR) were illegal and unconstitutional.

According to Wil Cwikiel, Environmental Policy Specialist, "the executive orders not only cut public input out of a decision-making process that has been refined over the past 75 years, but they also do away with the human resources and expertise that was represented on the boards and commissions." Many red flags went up as this opinion prevailed among many sectors of the Michigan community.

Judge Houk's ruling centered around the fact that the reorganization scheme unilaterally dismantled citizen access to and public involvement in, state decisions regarding protection of our environment and natural resources. According to Judge Houk's decision, "No more basic right exists than the right of the citizenry to be heard." Governor Engler has appealed the decision. The outcome remains to be seen. (Fest cont. from pg. 13)

I didn't stick around for the elections that night. All the board members were re-nominated and consequently re-elected as there were eight people and eight open seats. [Hummm, sounds familiar...] Instead I went back to my buddy Dave "Sleeper" Allans' pad in Seattle and we proceeded to pound Red Hook Ale (a Seattle micro-brew) and exchange mountain biking stories...

Thanks Jeff, the date for this years IMBA Fest is coming up and if anyone would like more info on the "Trail Harding Test" Jeff spoke of we have it, just contact me - (616) 784-9327.

commitment to mountain biking and add the sex well, this is what you've been reading this for really. It's like reaching the top of the climb at Kandahar...oop's out of space. I'll leave the rest of this article to your imagination. Until next month when we'll talk to Dr. Loose Link, better know as Dr. Loose and he'll explain what to do if you and your mountain bike have had a bad spat, and aren't speaking to each other...

drop off's to thrill crowds everywhere. Bob ended his performance with a leap over a volunteer from the audience who laid down on stage and got a close up view of Bob's grippy knobies. If you missed Bob in action at the annual meeting you might catch him elsewhere because he and his bike are available for hire. Bob jumps that bike like it has wings...

Those at the annual meeting also had the privilege of hearing from both Phil Wells, Michigan's Rail-Trails Director and Russ Harding, Director of Michigan Department of Natural Resources. They both commented on the states shrinking budget and commended our group's willingness to work with our state park and forest management personnel to care, develop and maintain state lands for mountain biking and all user groups.

The Western Chapter of the MMBA has adopted a portion of a highway close to a favorite riding area near Grand Rapids and Harding was quoted saying, "that one of your chapters has adopted a highway I think is great. They have shown not only an interest in maintaining trails but are willing to go above and beyond that and say we have a responsibility as citizens of the state in preserving our natural heritage..."

Another suggestion from Harding included a plea for mountain bikers to get involved in their local riding areas and help fill gaps in services that budget constraints accentuate. As for mountain biking, Harding was quoted as saying, "Like any government agency we are subject to public pressure. If we have a highly used trail and have a lot of complaints then we will have to stop and take note." So far things have been fairly cool and those of us who are committed to education and maintenance are seeing the results of the hard work and time spent for the benefit of all mountain bikers across the state.

Our event was covered by a statewide chain of newspapers and received balanced recognition of our commitment to Michigan's trails. The Outdoors Editor for the Booth Newspapers said in an article about the annual meeting, "...as an organization striving for recognition and credibility on a natural resource-based recreational issues, it appeared the MMBA had arrived."

Also, the MMBA Point Series Winners and the MMBA Member of the Year were honored. Over-all Point Series winner was Mark Cramer, who took first in the Expert class riding for Sling-shot and our Member of the Year was Dianne James, who contributed her time and talents on the computer to get our membership tracking system up to par, and kept track of the MMBA point series for all of 1992. She attended the races, volunteered at the MMBA Point Series Race Table, tabulated points, contacted members and racers and basically made the first year of the Point Series a success.

Mark the first Sunday of February, 1993 on your calendars today, it will be next year's annual meeting date, and if you miss it you'll miss something really special again next year, as any one of the 200 people who were there will tell you.
